Bodies of evidence

Can a team of crime-fighters catch a terrifying serial killer?

NEW THRILLER

The Crow Girl

From Thu 16 January, Paramount+

The hunt for a serial killer places a determined detective and a skilled psychiatrist under unbearable pressure in Paramount+'s new brooding psychological thriller, The Crow Girl.

Based on the Scandi-noir novels by Erik Axl Sund – which is the pen name of Swedish authors Jerker Eriksson and Håkan Axlander Sundquist – the uncompromising six-part series sees Hijack's Eve Myles star as Bristol cop DCI Jeanette Kilburn, who is investigating a distressing case alongside her colleague DI Lou Stanley (Vigil actor Dougray Scott).

The pair are baffled when the body of a young man is found in a bag, having been beaten and drugged with an anaesthetic. Jeanette suspects that dentist Carl Lowry (Trevor White), who has been arrested for possession of child-abuse images, may be connected and she seeks the help of enigmatic Dr Sophia Craven (Katherine Kelly), the psychiatrist who is clinically assessing him.

But soon, a string of similar murders occur in the city, while Sophia also appears haunted by the disappearance of one of her other patients, Victoria Burkeman (Clara Rugaard), who is also known as the 'Crow Girl'. Are the cases linked?

Here, in an exclusive chat, Myles, 46, and Kelly, 45, reveal more...

What drew you both to The Crow Girl?

Kelly I've never played a psychiatrist before. Sophia's a different character for me, so that was a draw.

Myles The Crow Girl is unapologetic in its choices and a special project. I'd been playing wholesome characters, but Jeanette was somebody I found challenging, so I jumped in with two feet.

How do you view your characters? What are they like?

Kelly Sophia seems unknowable, a lone wolf. But you see glitches in her behaviour. All is not as it seems. She's full of surprises.

Myles Jeanette is straight to the point, unfiltered, unforgiving and relentless – very different from my own traits.

Tell us a bit about the impact the case has on them...

Myles Bodies of young men are turning up every day and this is an emergency. Jeanette's juggling work and family but this is the start of something that changes her life. She knows it isn't going to stop, and she'll go to any lengths to get answers.

Kelly Sophia's wrestling with the past and her other cases and has taken on board more than she should. But she just finds this investigation intoxicating because this is a race against time.

'This show's DNA is about secrets and how and when we reveal them'

EVE MYLES

DC Mike Dilliston (Elliot Edusah) and DI Lou Stanley (Dougray Scott)

How does their relationship develop during the investigation?

Myles They start on the wrong foot but then begin to come together. It's not about catty fighting; it's about two intellectual women. They need something from each other and an interesting, unusual relationship begins.

Kelly They're both independent, instinctive thinkers who play outside the lines. It doesn't take much to scratch the surface and realise that they're similar beings.

The show has made some changes from the books, hasn't it?

Myles Yes, I found the books incredibly disturbing and Milly Thomas [the lead writer of the adaptation] has sourced much of the material from them, but the series is different. The authors came on set and were thrilled.

Kelly The books are tricky and Milly found a different way in. But if you're a fan, I don't think you'll be disappointed.

It sounds like there are plenty of curveballs in store...

Myles Yes, this show's DNA is about secrets and how and when we reveal them – that's the thrill. The characters are where they should be for a reason, but it's not where they are by the end...

WHO'S WHO IN THE CROW GIRL

Superintendent Verity Pound

Victoria Hamilton

The senior officer is keen for the crimes to be solved, but reins in Jeanette's reckless behaviour.

DC Mike Dilliston

Elliot Edusah

Lou is mentoring the naive young detective, who is forced to assess his own moral code and uncovers vital evidence.

Victoria Burkeman

Clara Rugaard

The dysfunctional woman, known as the 'Crow Girl', is one of Sophia's clients and has vanished. But what secrets lie in her past?

Madeleine

Chloé Sweetlove

The teenager has a difficult home life and develops a bond with Victoria, which casts a shocking light over the investigation.

Amar

Roger Jean Nsengiyumva

The refugee arrives from Sudan and is caught up in a highly dangerous world. But how does that connect to the case?

APPETITE FOR DESTRUCTION

The Crow Girl is executive produced by long-time Guns N' Roses guitarist Slash, who now juggles his music career with working on film and television projects.

'I am a horror and thriller fan and I fell in love with the novel. It's a harrowingly dark and suspenseful story – a great twisty tale,' says the 59-year-old rock legend, who also contributes to the theme tune and soundtrack of the show.

'I was too busy to write the whole score, but I would write music on the road and send it to the team. The theme song is such a moody piece.'

Cameron Diaz makes her screen comeback as she joins Jamie Foxx for an action-packed espionage movie

Secrets & spies

Emily and Matt's life is upturned

NEW ACTION COMEDY

Back in Action

From Friday 17 January, Netflix

Actor Jamie Foxx hit the headlines at the end of 2024 when the Hollywood star revealed in a Netflix special that he'd been hospitalised after suffering a stroke while shooting high-octane movie Back in Action with Cameron Diaz.

Thankfully, after several weeks of treatment, the 57-year-old Oscar-winner was well enough to return to set to complete the action-packed film – which lands on Netflix this week.

Foxx and Diaz play former spies – married couple Matt and Emily – who left the world of espionage behind 15 years ago to start a family, swapping adrenaline-fuelled missions for a sedate life of packed lunches and parents' evenings.

Their two children, Alice and Leo, know nothing about their mum and dad's secret past, but when they accidentally blow their cover, the truth comes out and the family must go on the run.

Andrew Scott as Baron

UNDER PRESSURE

When the bullets start flying, Matt and Emily find they've lost none of their skill sets as they evade capture in a series of thrilling escapes...

'The fun thing about this movie is that it's full of humour and action,' says Diaz, who began her film career in 1994's The Mask. 'I related to the fact that all Emily wants to be is a great mother. She wants to give her children the life she didn't have. She wants to put her children before her profession.'

It's fitting, then, that the movie marks Diaz's return to the screen after she took a 10-year hiatus from acting in order to have children with musician husband Benji Madden.

'It felt like the right thing for me to build the life that I really wanted to have,' explains the 52-year-old, who now has two young children, Raddix and Cardinal. 'It really comes down to: what are you passionate about? For me, it was to build my family.'

CO-STAR CONNECTION

Diaz's last movie outing was 2014 musical Annie, in which she starred with Foxx, and it was the pair's close friendship that persuaded her to return to acting.

'The reason I decided to come back for this movie is 100% because Jamie was doing it,' explains Diaz, who also starred with Foxx in 2000's Any Given Sunday.

'Before Jamie invited me, I wasn't planning on acting in another movie again.'

The star-studded cast includes Jamie Demetriou, Andrew Scott and Glenn Close, who plays Emily's mother Ginny.

'Glenn was someone we knew we wanted from the start,' says writer and director Seth Gordon. 'Her character is a bit of an ass-kicking gangster grandma. Glenn had also done a bunch of preparation and she did all the stunts herself.'

While Close and Diaz were willing to put their bodies on the line for a host of action scenes, Foxx admits he was less eager, especially during a stunt sequence filmed on the River Thames in London.

'Cameron has young kids, so I was always using her as an excuse to get out of doing stunts,' he laughs. 'Then the stunt people would interrupt me and say, "Cameron says she's ready to go." So we had to run across a bridge over the Thames and it was freezing. At one point, I had to ask Cameron to stop saying yes to everything!'

Sir Steve Redgrave on why he's swapped rowing for ice skating...

Blades of glory

NEW ENTERTAINMENT

Dancing on Ice

Sunday, 6.30pm, ITV1

The first British athlete to win five Olympic gold medals in five successive Games, Sir Steve Redgrave is the most-decorated rower in history. But can he add another trophy to his haul as he takes to the rink for Dancing on Ice?

The 62-year-old joins the likes of Springwatch presenter Michaela Strachan and former footballer Anton Ferdinand as a new crop of famous faces try to impress judges Ashley Banjo, Oti Mabuse and legends Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean in the 17th series of the ITV1 competition.

Here, Redgrave reveals why he's taking up the challenge...

Why have you signed up for Dancing on Ice? For the last series, I recorded a video segment about what Jayne Torvill and Christopher Dean mean to British sport to mark 40 years since their gold medal in the Winter Olympics. Afterwards, I said to the producers: 'I suppose you're going to try to get me on the show now' – and here I am. Last year was also the 40th anniversary of winning my first gold medal at the Summer Olympics in Los Angeles, so it seemed like a good idea.

From left: Torvill, Dean, Mabuse and Banjo

How would you rate your skating skills? I'm starting from a low level – probably lower than everyone else due to my age – and I don't bounce as much as I used to. In 2014, I took part in C4's The Jump, and I did short-track skating. I could get around the rink all right, so speed isn't my issue, but style will be.

What do you see as being your biggest challenges? I've been diabetic for almost 30 years and the sensation in my feet isn't as good as it once was, so navigating my footing on the ice could be a problem. I also have Dupuytren's contracture, a condition that stops me being able to make my hands flat. So if I do fall over, I may have trouble getting up.

What do your friends and family think of you taking part? And will they come to support you? I used to go skating with my children when they were younger and I'm a grandfather now, so to be able to take my grandchildren out on the ice will be amazing. My friends and family all want tickets for the very first show – I don't think that any of them are holding our much hope for the ninth week!

Meanwhile, as mystery surrounds whether Douglas is responsible for his wife's murder, shocking secrets emerge that even Kat can't have predicted.

'The Macleans have such a complicated history, so a key part of the drama is teasing out those details,' says Groundsell. 'We also slowly see how Kat was Groundsell says that filming in Gaelic in the Outer Hebrides was a real career highlight.

'I grew up on Lewis speaking Gaelic and I've wanted to work in Gaelic,' she says. 'It's been a wonderful opportunity to reconnect with my language, culture and heritage.'

'Also, anyone who's been to this part of the world will tell you that there's an energy that comes with the landscape – and that brought its own tension to every scene we shot.'

Luke Littler

We hear you take part in a zany challenge this week.... It's a challenge called Human Darts. It was hilarious. I was dressed as a dart and Jill Scott and Tom Davis dragged me back in a harness and launched me towards a bullseye – it was chaotic but so much fun.

What's the most ridiculous thing you do in this series? Without a doubt, it was Magic Micah. Let's just say, I got way out of my comfort zone. They wanted me to take my top off and everything – not happening! It was a bit much, but looking back, it's one of those moments you laugh about later.

What would be your ideal challenge? I'd love to do a mini-Olympics. Imagine all of us competing in the long jump, high jump, 100m dash – all the iconic events. It would be chaos, but it would make incredible TV.

If you could invite any sports legend on to the show, who would it be? I'd go for Roy Keane. He's got this incredible mix of hardman energy and surprising warmth. He's a natural for TV and would outshine everyone. Paul Gascoigne would be great, too. He has this aura that lights up a room, and his stories are legendary.

What else can I watch?

The best of Netflix, Prime Video, Disney+ and more...

NEW Available: Fri 17 Jan Genre: Thriller
Season: 2 Episodes: 10 (released weekly)

Back in 2022, Apple TV+'s darkly comic thriller Severance put a surreal spin on the idea of maintaining a work-life balance by exploring the challenges faced by employees who had chosen to have their office and home lives surgically 'severed' from each other.

Now, the series is back for a second run, directed again by Ben Stiller, as the increasingly unsettled workers at Lumon step up their mission to uncover the truth about their employers and the consequences of the procedure they have undergone.

In the last run, the office-based 'innie' versions of Mark Scout (Adam Scott), Helly Riggs (Britt Lower) and Irving Bailiff (John Turturro), who work in the mysterious Macrodata Refinement department, took a risky glimpse at their lives outside Lumon when their colleague Dylan George (Zach Cherry) helped them use the 'overtime contingency protocol'.

'Innie' Mark was stunned to realise that he was married to Lumon's wellness adviser Ms Casey (Dichen Lachman), who his 'outie' believes is dead. Meanwhile, Helly was horrified that her 'outie' is a member of the ruthless Eagan clan who founded Lumon, Irving learnt that retired colleague Burt (Christopher Walken), with whom he had bonded, already had a partner, and Dylan discovered he had a family.

BIG QUESTIONS

But as the second series gets under way, how will the quartet deal with their new-found knowledge and the growing conflict between their split identities as they face the fallout from experimenting with the 'severance barrier'?

'Severance is about a group of people going up against this enormous company. But now that Mark has this explosive piece of information, does he communicate it to his outie?' says Scott, 51, as TV&Satellite Week joins him and Stiller for a video chat. 'And how does this affect his identity and his disillusioned feelings about his workplace?'

The second season also sees Patricia Arquette return as enigmatic Harmony Cobel, the ex-manager of the severed floor at Lumon, and Tramell Tillman is back as gung-ho company jobsworth Seth Milchick. Meanwhile, Gwendoline Christie, Alia Shawkat, Bob Balaban and Merritt Wever join the cast.

'Story-wise, we wanted to expand on where we left off but create new environments,' teases Stiller, 59. 'Part of this season concerns questions about what the Lumon employees are doing there. We'll hopefully give answers and pose more questions.'

A couple fights to rebuild civilisation after a global disaster

MGM+ Earth Abides

NEW Available: Sat 11 January Genre: Sci-fi
Season: 1 Episodes: 6 (first two eps from 11 January, then weekly)

What would happen if mankind was given a second chance at life? That's the question at the heart of post-apocalyptic sci-fi thriller Earth Abides, which follows one couple's mission to restore civilisation following a disaster that all but wipes out humanity.

Based on George R. Stewart's 1949 sci-fi novel, the six-part dystopian drama follows geologist Isherwood 'Ish' Williams (Alexander Ludwig), who ends up unconscious after being bitten by a snake while on an expedition in the Sierra Nevada mountains. He finally wakes weeks later in his isolated cabin, but when he ventures to the nearest city, he finds deserted streets and decaying corpses.

DILEMMA

A deadly pandemic has wiped out much of the human race and Ish finds himself alone – until he crosses paths with a survivor, Emma (Jessica Frances Dukes).

As the pair develop an unbreakable bond, over the years, they're joined by others who are immune to the fateful disease. A new community emerges, but Ish and Emma face a dilemma: do they try to re-create society as it was or create a whole new world?

'You hear "post-apocalyptic" and you think of zombies and monsters, but this is about finding purpose and meaning, and it's about people

other survivors

and how the monsters lie within,' says Ludwig, 32. 'I love the idea of seeing what happens if we become a primitive species again – how do we rebuild and can we get it right?'

FINDING PURPOSE

The series spans years as Ish and Emma meet survivors, including the charming leader of a travelling group, Charlie (Aaron Tveit), civil engineer Jorge (Rodrigo Fernandez-Stoll), who joins Ish's community, recovering addict Jean (Hilary McCormack), doctor Molly (Luisa D'Oliveira), and ex-club owner Ezra (Birkett Turton).

'The characters deal with the trials and tribulations of starting anew, whether that be disease, giving birth to your first child or fighting animals that are reclaiming what is rightfully theirs,' says Ludwig. 'But Ish realises the only way he's going to survive is not only to find purpose within himself, but to find others to share that purpose with, too.'

Unstoppable

NEW Available: Thursday 16 January
Genre: Drama

The remarkable true story of Anthony Robles is brought to the screen in this biopic about the US wrestler, who was born with one leg but pursued his dream of becoming a national champion.

Jharrel Jerome takes on the role of Anthony, while Jennifer Lopez plays his mother Judy, who supports him in his mission, despite facing poverty and an abusive husband (Bobby Cannavale).

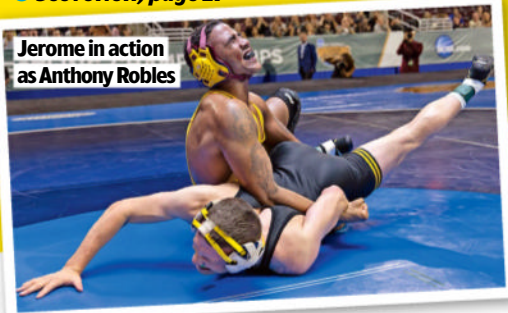

Along the way, Anthony is encouraged by his high-school coach Bobby Williams (Jack Ryan's Michael Peña) as he struggles to choose a college where he can achieve his goals.

'You could call Unstoppable a sports story, but it's not – it's more of a family story. It's really about the bond between this mother and son,' explains Lopez, 55. 'That is the heart of the film.'

'You see this champion, you see this very extraordinary person in Anthony, but without his mother, he would not have been that person.' Lopez met Judy before filming began, and was impressed by her fortitude.

'On the surface, you wouldn't think of a mom-of-five, who had a baby when she was 16 and who struggled in this marriage for 20 years, to become this inspirational character,' she says. 'But it makes it all the more inspirational because of the everyday struggles that she had.'

Police investigate a double killing in a compelling Scandi noir

Midsummer MURDERS

Blackwater

NEW

Available: Friday 17 January

Genre: Thriller Season: 1 Episodes: 6

Dubbed one of the best Swedish series in recent years, dark drama Blackwater is a slow-burning slice of Scandi noir that revolves around a double murder and its lingering consequences in a small community many years later.

In 1973, school teacher Annie arrives in the northern Swedish village of Svartvattnet [Blackwater] with her daughter Mia during a midsummer festival to start a new life at a hippy commune in the wilderness. But as she makes her way to her new home, she is met by a gruesome discovery – the bodies of two people who have been brutally murdered while camping in their tent.

As the police investigate, it becomes clear that the commune has its own secrets, not least the sinister and controlling leader Petrus, while local teenager Johan arouses suspicion when he flees in the wake of the crimes.

RIPPLE EFFECT

The series flashes back and forth between 1973 and 1991, when the aftermath of the unsolved case still reverberates throughout the village, while Johan's return stirs up deeply buried emotions for the locals.

'Two people are killed in a tent, but it changes the lives of these people,' says co-writer Maren Louise Käehne, who helped adapt the story from a bestselling novel. 'The villagers have a quiet life in the middle of nowhere, but this murder has changed everything for them.'

The series is a real family affair for actor Pernilla August, who plays the older Annie. Her real-life daughter Asta plays the younger Annie in 1973, while her other daughter Alba plays the role of Mia in 1991.

'We have these two timelines of people, the young versions of them and the versions that are almost 20 years older, and we see the contrasts between them,' says Käehne. 'Most of them are estranged from the people they were close to because of this incident. Of course, there's a crime to be solved but it's also about the lives of these people.'

The Lost Women Spies

Tuesday, 9pm, Sky History
(box set, Sky Box Sets & NOW)

At the height of World War Two, the French Resistance needed help in fighting the Nazis. It came in the form of the British secret agency SOE (Special Operations Executive), which sent weapons, explosives and agents.

But by the beginning of 1942, the already dangerous work of being an agent was becoming even more perilous – the life expectancy of a wireless operator in occupied France was just six weeks.

Then the head of the SOE, Brigadier Colin Gubbins, came up with the controversial idea of deploying women behind enemy lines.

As Sky History's new six-part series The Lost Women Spies reveals, using women in combat roles was illegal under British law – but British Prime Minister Winston Churchill still agreed to the audacious plan.

'The Nazis believed that resistance was all-male, so men wandering around the streets would be stopped, their papers would be checked and they may have been taken away for questioning,' explains historian Dr Kate Vigurs. 'Women could blend more easily into French life.'

After Churchill gave the go-ahead, work began on the top-secret task of recruiting agents. It was the responsibility of one woman, Vera Atkins, to train them and send them to France.

The recruits included Noor Inayat Khan, a fluent French speaker who had considerable skill as a wireless operator. However, she was betrayed in Paris and was executed by the Nazis at Dachau concentration camp in 1944, aged 30.

'The importance of Noor's mission simply can't be underestimated,' says historian Dr

Helen Fry. 'She was the first female wireless operator infiltrated into France.'

Another agent to lay down her life was Violette Szabo. Aged just 23, she was executed by the Germans in 1945, leaving behind a young daughter Tania. In the early 1960s, Tania went to see Atkins to learn about her mother, who, like Noor Inayat Khan, was posthumously awarded the George Cross.

'In no way whatsoever did I resent Vera for sending my mother off to such dangerous places on her secret missions,' says Tania Szabo, who's now in her 80s. 'When it's war, you do what you have to do.'

Paddy McGuinness finds out how Quavers are manufactured

FACTUAL

Inside the Factory

Tuesday, 8pm, BBC1

Before Christmas, chocolate-lover and father-of-three Paddy McGuinness was delighted to be visiting the factory where they make Guylian chocolate seashells, on his first assignment as the new presenter of Inside the Factory. But while he was able to fill his boots as he inspected the production line, he couldn't take any freebies home.

'My little lad's got a nut allergy,' explains the 51-year-old, who this week visits the Walkers factory in Lincoln where the popular cheese curls Quavers are made. 'But all my kids love Quavers, and I even sent them little videos of all the Quavers going down the production line!'

While co-presenter Cherry Healey learns how Bombay mix is created and historian Ruth Goodman tells the wartime story behind our love of cheese flavouring, McGuinness dons his hairnet to find out how they make 500 million packs of Quavers every year, and he is surprised at how hot and steamy the factory floor is.

'It's like landing on the sun!' he jokes.

During his visit, he learns how the production process transforms potato starch left over from crisp production into the addictive cheesy snacks, with a machine chopping dough into nearly 8,000 pellets a minute. And once the Quavers are baked, bagged and boxed, nearly 100,000 packets are loaded on to each lorry for distribution to supermarkets and shops around the country.

Although he's a relative newbie on the series, McGuinness says he's already bonded with Healey.

'When I did my Children in Need bike-ride challenge [in November], she turned up in Kendal to surprise me,' he reveals. 'That was a lovely thing, and it just shows you how we are together.'

Having come full circle from working in the Warburtons bread factory he visited in the Tuesday 7 January episode of Inside the Factory, McGuinness is still surprised and delighted by the ongoing success of his TV career.

'It would never have been in my mind to do a dating show like Take Me Out, and then be a part of Top Gear,' he explains. 'I've always been one of those people who will give anything a go. When opportunities come along, it's up to you whether you take them or not.'

Bad Boys: Ride or Die

ACTION THRILLER

Friday, 8pm,
Sky Premiere

Nearly 30 years after the original Bad Boys, Will Smith and Martin Lawrence bounce back with a fourquel that sees their Miami cop characters Mike and Marcus fighting to clear the name of their boss Captain Howard (Joe Pantoliano), who's posthumously accused of corruption. The intervention of a mysterious new foe (Eric Dane) means they end up on the run themselves, along with Armando (Jacob Scipio), the erstwhile antagonist revealed to be Mike's son in 2020's Bad Boys for Life. The plot isn't desperately involving: it's a vehicle to take our heroes – who range from hapless to highly skilled – from one action-comedy scene to another. After Marcus has a brush with death, much of the laughs come from his newfound mystical beliefs, including the conviction that he's invincible. Less amusing is his ongoing obsession with junk food, the source of some overplayed set pieces and very obvious product placement (though conversely, the suggestion that loaded hot dogs can lead to a heart attack might put a few viewers off their movie snacks). Numerous familiar female characters (including Vanessa Hudgens' weapons expert and Paola Núñez's police captain) come back to either wield guns or play damsels in distress, but the focus is firmly on the genial central pair as they dart around Miami raising the body count. Collateral damage is often played for giggles – life is pretty cheap in this world, unless you're one of the good/bad boys. As with previous adventures, the two headline stars still have enough on-screen chemistry to see this through to the bitter end, but one can't help thinking by the end this might be the time to retire them for good... 2024, 15, 115MIN

A reimagining of the stage show, but really in thrall to the 1961 film, Steven Spielberg's new version boasts spectacular dance numbers and, of course, incredible songs. Set among rival gangs in 1950s New York, it stars Ansel Elgort and

Rachel Zegler as the star-crossed lovers. Among the highlights are the mixer where the two communities are forced to mingle and the performance of America that engulfs the streets. One homage to the 1961 film that does pay off is the recasting of Rita Moreno (previously Anita), as this film's Doc equivalent. Once again, she's a standout. 2021, 12, 156MIN

Twilight of the Warriors: Walled In

Sunday, 9.30am & 11.40pm, Sky Premiere ★★★

Having languished in development hell for quite some time, director Soi Cheang's technically impressive, if underwhelming, ass-kicker finally made it onto the big screen. It's one of the most expensive Hong Kong films ever made and it shows as Lok (Raymond Lam), a refugee to 1980s Hong Kong, double-crosses triads and hides out on the mean streets of Kowloon Walled City, where he tangles with a criminal overlord (Louis Koo). The plot twists may be obvious but the frenzied, claustrophobic fights (especially one brilliant set piece on board a bus) are inventive and bruisingly balletic. 2024, 15, 125MIN

From Monday

Sex ●●● Violence ●●● Language ●●●

Clint Eastwood's 40th film as director is a hugely contrived but highly enjoyable courtroom drama that harks back to that classic legal thriller 12 Angry Men (see p24). Nicholas Hoult stars as the eponymous juror who is the lone hold-out among his peers in a high-profile murder case, feeling conflicted and ambivalent as he grapples with a moral dilemma over the accused's innocence or guilt. FIRST

King & Conqueror

James Norton and Nikolaj Coster-Waldau star in a Battle of Hastings drama

Nikolaj Coster-Waldau as William

The fight to claim the throne of England in 1066 is being brought into the spotlight for BBC1's upcoming period drama King & Conqueror.

In the eight-part series, airing later in 2025, James Norton plays Harold Godwinson, Earl of Wessex, who, following the demise of King Edward the Confessor (Eddie Marsan), becomes monarch. But over in Normandy, Harold's one-time ally Duke William, portrayed by Nikolaj Coster-Waldau, also has a right to be king...

As the private lives and passions of both men are explored, their political power struggle leads to the Battle of Hastings, which results in death for one and victory for the other and changes the country for ever.

STAR-STUDED CAST

The drama, which was filmed in Iceland, sees Emily Beecham as Harold's spouse Edith Swan Neck, while Clémence Poésy is William's wife Matilda and Juliet Stevenson is Edward's mother Lady Emma. Geoff Bell plays

Harold's father Godwin and Clare Holman is Harold's mother Gytha.

'An incredible amount is true, and it's such an integral part of English history. It's the first date we learn – 1066, the Battle of Hastings. No one knows much more about it than that. But what has continued to propel us forward is this gallery of interesting characters,' says Norton, who is an executive producer on the series. 'It contextualises their stories – it wasn't just meaningless grabs for power – they were husbands and fathers.'

WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

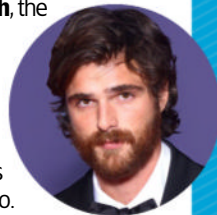

Gugu Mbatha-Raw

The actor will appear in Sky Atlantic's drama Inheritance as a biracial lawyer who heads to Jamaica to look into a claim involving a wealthy estate, but finds herself confronting her own terrors and the island's dark history.

Jacob Elordi

In BBC1's adaptation of Richard Flanagan's novel The Narrow Road to the Deep North, the star plays Dorrig, a prisoner of war in Burma in World War Two who is haunted by a love affair. Ciarán Hinds is the older Dorrig.

Tom Daley

C4's knitting competition Game of Wool will see the Olympic diver and keen knitter host proceedings as 10 contestants work on a range of tricky group and individual knits to put their needle skills to the test.

Coming Back

In a second run of Sky Atlantic's blackly comic thriller Sweetpea, Ella Purnell will reprise her role as vengeful serial killer Rhiannon Lewis, whose murderous secret takes her in even dark directions.
